Dear Department of Justice:

It is my opinion that most of charges against Microsoft are very minor and are the type of things companies do to grow there business if there competitors can't compete they whine and sue if things worked that way Studebaker would still be in business if they were protected like Apple Computer in the Education Market!

But the bottom line is certain states and individuals drum up these charges so they can as Robinhood rob the rich!

There would be no such suits if Microsoft didn't have billions in cash! And companies do to weak products or bad management are protected by the government cry to the goverment that they need protection and money from there more sophisticated competitor Microsoft!

Sincerely,
Dennis Kleindorfer
